Denise Cundiff is a Safety and Training Consultant for Catalyst Safety, with experience in Environment, Health, and Safety. She blends practical problem solving with the implementation of new approaches. Using these tools, allows her to develop programs and engage employees to get company cultures started, back on track, or inspired to the next level. Helping companies reach beyond compliance and implement a higher level of expectation for systems, culture, and innovation. She advocates for the inclusion of EH&S into all projects, no matter the scale. With her collaborative skills and consensus building, her approach saves companies time and money in the long run.

Denise focuses on integrating safety into daily activities while shifting “blame, shame, and retrain” towards a new way of thinking, building employee resilience and capacity so their input and knowledge are used to make systems safer.

Although maintaining a level of excellence within industries is a priority, ensuring employees never experience a change in their quality of life has become her ultimate passion.
