Christina Aguilera is Director of Environmental Health and Safety at Kansas State University and a recent transplant to Kansas. She has a Bachelor's in Environmental Studies, Masters in Public Health and an Associates of Applied Science in electrical engineering technology (but claims zero understanding of all things electrical).

Ms. Aguilera has been working in the occupational safety and health field for over 20 years, primarily in research and academic settings. During this time, she has established or helped update a few respiratory protection programs and is familiar with common assumptions that can lead to gaps.
